

Salute to community's past, future

PLEASANTON — The community's past accomplishments and future promise were saluted by a dinner gathering of several hundred people who turned out for a Friday evening affair at Castlewood Country Club.

The traditional "Community Development Awards" were the highlight of festivities which included also the installation of a new slate of officers to guide the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce throughout 1975.

Ben Fernandez will serve as chamber president, succeeding Jo Betty Allen in that post. The two vice presidents are Merle Telford and Ted Mann.

Eight community awards and one presidential citation were distributed throughout the evening, but the warmest applause was saved for two women included in that list of honorees. Mrs. Hugh (Dagmar) Fulton was saluted for "a lifetime of service to her community" including her labors a half century ago on behalf of the 4-H movement, and her more recent service on the board of directors for Valley Memorial Hospital.

Marie Cochrane was joined by her husband, Fred, in accepting the president's citation that recognized the Cochrane's "professional guidance and inspiration" to a number of local productions, most particularly the Maid of Pleasanton Pageant which has been staged by the Cochranes in recent years.

Other honors went to "all those who brought the Pleasanton Youth Center to completion," a tribute accepted on behalf of Pleasanton Youth Inc. by Robert Philcox. Phil Davidson accepted an award saluting Los Pilaes, a new Main Street office building; David Ozuna, manager of Valley Bank in Pleasanton, was given the citation welcoming that new South Main structure to the community.

Patrick Gill was applauded for "the persistence of the J.A. Jenks Company in searching out and developing a Pleasanton location." The new Civic Center on Bernal Avenue was cited with an award accepted by Mayor Floyd Mori. Dan Cristopolous and Tak Hirahara shared a commendation for the C and H Development on Hopyard Road that includes two restaurants and the California 6 Motel. Richard McDonnell was honored "for the attention to detail and esthetics" in developing the Hacienda Mobile Home Park on Vineyard Avenue.

Jack Bras was the program's master of ceremonies and Paul Phibbs, a special affairs manager for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and a Pleasanton resident was the installing officer.

Renewal of Health Care Center funding urged

PLEASANTON — A county report to be presented to the Board of Supervisors Jan. 28 recommends renewal of the county's $52,000 - a - year funding of the Family Health Care Center — depending on eight conditions.

The report is based on investigations by a four - member county team on Dec. 19 and 23 and Jan. 6. On those dates, team members interviewed members of the staff and governing board, reviewed the by - laws, and inspected operations at the clinic as a result of accusations the clinic was not well run. At no time were the services that patients receive criticized; only the clinic's management was scrutinized.

Unlike the Family Health Care Center of San Ramon, which is for private patients, the Pleasanton center serves the Valley's low - income residents with general medical checkups, diagnosis, venereal disease clinics, well baby clinics and the like.

It is funded from various sources including federal Health, Education and Welfare money and Planned Parenthood support, as well as the county allotment.

This September, the county Board of Supervisors considered withdrawing its revenue sharing funding of the center because bad publicity the center was receiving was creating doubts about its stability and effectiveness. Funding was later renewed for six months, and will probably be renewed for another half year if the supervisors approve the current report.

Most of the points county investigators would like to see changed are already being remedied. Those include by - law changes, appointment of a new director and placement of consumers on the board of directors.

There may, however, be some resistance to other points. For example, "It is suggested that any firings and - or resignations be reviewed by the county," says the report.

"Just plain asinine!" retorts Nina Smith, vice chairperson of the governing board. Speaking for herself and not for the board (which has not met since the report came out) she declared a new personnel policy puts hirings and firings in the hands of the director and there they should rest.

Mrs. Smith objects to the whole idea of county investigation of the center. She calls it "not only illegal, but objectionable politically and morally" for the county to peer into the internal workings of the center, which is located in a cluster of professional buildings on Railroad Avenue.

She refused to be interviewed by a county representative during the investigation. The county may decide to withdraw their funding if they want. But they cannot dictate how we will run the center," she declared Friday. "The tri - valley area has minimal political rights already, and the people had better start protecting what they have," she added.

Pointing to a disproportionate lack of county facilities for the hundreds of poor families living in the valley, she said, "We'd better hang in there or we're going to get neglected even more."

Mrs. Smith said she felt the power struggles and bad publicity of last summer were a "tempest in a teapot," an attempt by the county to "sink" the Family Health Care Center.

The motive, she suggested, could be a desire to shunt patients to Valley Memorial Hospital's Family Health Care Center in San Ramon, which is in its first year of operation, or simply to stop providing services to low - income residents in the area.

Similar suspicions have been voiced by another Health Care Center board member, who says the center has been without a doctor for its clinic for the elderly because the county is trying to trim back Pleasanton's operation.

Along with their copies of the county report, Health Care Center directors received copies of a letter from chairperson Birdie Bianchi, who said in her opinion the evaluation was incomplete because the nursing component had not been evaluated (although, ironically, services not related to the delivery of medical service, such as board conflicts, had been thoroughly investigated).

Meanwhile, the center is operating as usual (except for the geriatric clinic, which has been shut down since November for lack of a doctor) and offering a full range of services to low - income residents of the area. The office may be contacted at 462 - 1755 for details on its services.

For response to letter

Teachers press Newlin

By AL FISCHER
PLEASANTON — Dr. Bruce Newlin, Amador - Pleasanton schools superintendent, said Friday he will respond to an "open letter" sent him by the Amador Valley Teachers Assn. Board of Directors.

The missive, part of the AVTA newsletter, indicated strong concern over Newlin's "practical implications of the philosophy" of participative management. Specifically, the AVTA board said it was "especially interested in learning more about how participative management translates into building level operations."

Newlin said he had been apprised of the "Open Letter to Dr. Newlin" in advance but added he had not decided how he'd respond.

The letter concludes by asking that Newlin reply in the February issue of the newsletter. "In this way, you can speak directly and simultaneously to all the elementary teachers," the letter then added that, "so that we may meet our deadlines, please submit your reply to Mary Eveleth by January 27." The latter is president of AVTA.

Newlin felt the points brought up in the letter were quite valid, noting the concern for the teachers' role in the concept first introduced to the district by former superintendent Rudy Gatti.

"The teachers of the district (Pleasanton) are still waiting to be briefed on the practical implications of the philosophy. We think the time has come for the district to clearly outline what roles, if any, teachers are expected to play in this shared decision-making effort."

"The teachers have observed a wide range of administrative styles among district principals and wonder how participative management incorporates so much variation. Teachers want to know how the concept changes or improves their classroom situations. They want to know how principal-teacher relations may be altered." The letter continues by stating that "some teachers are afraid that they are going to be treated as unpaid consultants loaning even more of their time after putting in a full day of teaching."

"Are teachers to have a 'real' voice or will they be included only when it's 'convenient'?" Would participation include a responsibility to evaluate the quality of decisions? Should teachers be regularly involved in the hiring process? Would teacher participation in the decision-making process be formalized so that it would not be swept away at the whim of a new superintendent?

"In brief, Dr. Newlin, we are asking you to share with us your best thinking and plans on the subject of teachers and participative management."

Though declining to say if he would respond via the newsletter or in an opening meeting with AVTA, Newlin did note that he had not received any similar "letter" from the Amador district organization... Amador Valley Secondary Educators Assn.

Gatti, now superintendent at Santa Clara, had instituted the concept last year. One of the reasons that put a "plus" beside Newlin's name during the hiring process was his familiarity and embracing of the participative management concept.

The letter is the first known communication between Newlin and teachers that has asked the former Lancaster superintendent to further explain a philosophy or method of professional education.

West Wind youth center acts to keep doors open

PLEASANTON — Contrary to reports and a recent article appearing in another Valley paper that contained inaccurate quotes and information, West Wind, the Pleasanton Youth, Inc. Center on Black Avenue did not have to close its doors due to drug problems.

According to Dan Diez, supervisor of the Center, marijuana was being smoked in the park area around the center, but not inside the Center. It was felt the situation of smoking around the Center could develop into a problem. Therefore, after several warnings to those smoking marijuana, the Youth Board along with City Staff decided to close the center for awhile to see if the situation would change.

"Smoking marijuana is a problem to our community," stated Diez. "We at the Center wanted to do something to correct it because we are concerned. We were not forced to close the facility, it was a step taken to try to solve a situation before it became a problem."

A youth serving on the Board felt if the Center would offer greater diversified programs inside and stop worrying what was going on outside that the situation might correct itself.

She also stated she felt if a patio could be put in behind the center, it might help contain activities connected with the center. Since the Center is surrounded completely by the park, the park appears to be a part of the Center. Plans for a patio are in the making.

West Wind will re-open its door for evening hours on Jan. 31 and will have supervision inside and outside. Hours will be: 3 to 5 p.m. and 5 to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday; and Friday and Saturday, 7:30 to 11:30 p.m.

The Youth Board, along with City Staff hopes numerous activities and services can be offered from the Center. They will be working on getting Teen Enterprise, a youth work service, to operate out of the Center and encourage other youth clubs, such as ski, camera, etc. to meet in the building.

The building has a completely equipped kitchen, wall decorations, and hangings to enhance the interior of the center. It is also comfortably furnished for those who just want to sit and talk with friends.

The youth program has offered tournaments, excursions, special dinners, various demonstrations and special guests.

Participants have also had the opportunity to join a range of activity clubs such as Bike, Rock Climbing, back packing, etc.

Diez feels activities are unlimited. It all depends on the interest.

Valley youths are invited to visit the center and let their interest be known and are encouraged to take an active part in making it "their center."

To further enhance youth programs, Pleasanton Youth, Inc. has been selected by the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club to be one of the recipients of funds from the 1975 Mardi Gras activities.

Further information on the Center may be obtained by contacting Diez at City Hall, 846-3202.

Bulky agenda awaits Murray school board

The Murray Elementary School District Board of Trustees faces its first heavy agenda of 1975 Monday night at 8 p.m. at Wells School.

Last week, prospective candidates for the three seats up for grabs on March 4 were treated to a half hour meeting but three reports and a discussion concerning the Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA) promise to make Monday's session quite a bit longer.

The first report will outline the results of the entry level tests for first graders throughout the district and will be quickly followed by a discussion of the Special Education Master Planning Application, a sheaf of papers of imposing height and chock full of nearly incomprehensible educational jargon.

A report that the common man will be able to understand without the aid of a translator will follow, this one on the progress of the polan site intermediate school.

Police academy at Rita 'independent'

By RON RODRIGUEZ

Jim Wilson is adamant when he says his police academy is "fiercely independent" of Santa Rita and the Alameda County Sheriff's Department, even though he's reached the rank of Captain in his 20 years with ACS.

"We're one of the Chabot satellite colleges: the Chabot College-Alameda County Sheriff's Academy Training Center," he says.

But there are no doubts that it's located at Santa Rita. The green and white, military-like buildings, the barb-capped fences, and the blue uniformed sheriffs leave no doubt in anyone's mind. Nor does Greystone, the maximum security section of the county jail.

This is the place. The foreboding, ex-Camp Shoemaker stockade.

Wilson's offices, however, are across the road, opposite the flagpole, in what was the Purser's office of the old Navy Station.

"We store our ammunition in the old safe," he says.

This winter saw the beginning of the 46th Recruit Training School at Santa Rita. The 50-day, 10-week course commenced Jan. 13, and by the Mar. 25 graduation, Wilson's raw recruits will be "smooth as silk."

"But remember," he emphasized, "we're not part of Santa Rita. There are 36 officers in this class, including 26 from Alameda County Sheriff's Department — the first time we've ever had more than 18 from the department — but we've got five from San Francisco Sheriff's Department, one from the Piedmont Police Department, and four from the University of California Lawrence Livermore Laboratory."

California law requires all persons "with peace officer powers" to complete the minimum 400 hour course and to take a refresher course every four years. Jailers must take an additional course once a year.

Forty-six academies operate in the state, according to Wilson.

"There are three types of academies," he continued, "the 'Academic Academy' that teaches education with a minimum of training, the departmental academies — Oakland's and San Francisco's among others — where they teach their particular systems, and us."

"We teach what's needed now, for 1975," he said, adding that both the 'how' and 'why' of performance are instilled in the recruits.

"Training is how to do your job; education is why," he said.

In the mid-60's the emphasis was on riot control, and now it's changed to crime prevention. Taking a page from Smokey the Bear, Wilson added that, "only people can prevent crimes."

The Academy, one of the oldest in the state, started in 1956 as a departmental training center for Alameda County. In 1960 it became a satellite of Chabot and expanded its program to meet the needs of neighboring police and sheriff's departments.

Eleven units of college credit are awarded for successful completion of the course, officially titled "Administration of Justice, 80."

All students are on salary from their respective departments while taking the course, and the cities and counties sending recruits may be reimbursed 60 percent by the state.

Students must furnish their own weapons, 38 special revolvers or 357 magnums and, holsters, and outside agencies must provide 700 rounds of "wadcutter" ammunition, 50 rounds of 12 gauge shotgun ammunition, and a minimum of 18 rounds of service ammunition.

The academy provides Penal Codes and copies of other manuals for use during the course.

Upon completion of the course, each recruit returns to his or her respective agency for instruction in local procedures.

That's right, "his or her respective agency." Eight women are enrolled this term, the largest number ever.

"We develop the officers' knowledge and basic skills in specific areas," Wilson said, adding that the course is interspersed with policies and procedures — and forms — from the individual departments.

Remember, those are "basic" skills, not simple skills. They run the gamut from criminal law and evidence, to administration of justice and criminal investigation. Not content with pure book work, 83 hours are spent on patrol procedures, including defensive driver training, another 26 hours on traffic control, 44 hours on defensive tactics, and 33 hours on police weapons.

Forty-eight additional hours are spent on Community-Police relations, including race and ethnic groups, police in society, social problems and the police, discretionary decision making, human relations, and modesty forbids press relations.

Juvenile procedures and laws are also covered, as are the problems of traffic control: the psychology of citations, drunk driving, and traffic direction.

"You can go to school all your life, but until you go out and do it..." Wilson paused, reflecting for a moment.

"You're the guy who's going to do it."

He recalled the first time he was sent out to direct traffic at a busy intersection. The signals had broken and Wilson had to stand in the middle of the street and control the flow through the intersection.

"I had to get those cars to stop. Just me. And keep my toes from getting run over. And not let the traffic back up too far in one direction. The training was great, but until you do it yourself..."

The academy makes liberal use of role playing and the video tape critique in nearly all its performance courses.

A moot trial is held at night in Livermore Municipal Court with the students playing suspects, witnesses, and police, and attorneys acting as judges and counsel.

The 'trial' is taped and critiqued by both recruits and faculty.

The same procedure is used for domestic disturbances, drunk driving arrests, traffic control, weapon and weaponless training, and community-police relations.

Wilson's faculty is chosen with the same professionalism with which he establishes the academy's curriculum.

"We won't limit ourselves. We pick a lot of instructors from within law enforcement, but a lot from the outside as well," he said.

Of the former, Chief Lindgren of the Livermore PD teaches a section of community-police relations, "Human Relations," while Henry Williams of the San Francisco PD lectures on "The Black American."

Special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation teach "Officer Survival," and three 'street narcs' are brought in to lecture on the narcotics trade.

"These people don't want to hear some guy talking about twenty years ago when he was handling narcotics," Wilson said. "They want to know about it now. We bring in these three street narcs — long hair, beards, the whole thing — who deal with the narcotics problem every day."

"That's the way we teach. We get the finest instructors available from their individual fields."

The list of laymen is impressive, too.

Maria Elena Chavea DePellinen, with a Masters' degree from the University of Mexico, delivers a three-hour lecture and film on the Mexican culture.

Frank Damron, a sociologist from California State University, Hayward, lectures on the counter culture, while Deputy District Attorney for Alameda County John Taylor and Attorneys John W. Noonan and Joseph E. Schwab pry the finer points of law.

Eight instructors trained at the Wilbur Shaw, Jr., Police Driving School run the students through a complicated course on the academy's permanent driving-range.

Proposed dude ranch

State orders another 'look'

SACRAMENTO — The State Water Resources Control Board says its Bay Area regional board should take another look at Diamond A Ranch, a proposed dude ranch near Pleasanton.

The action came on a 3-2 vote on a motion by vice chairman Ron Robie. Dissenting were Donald Maugh and Win Adams, board chairman.

The vote came on a petition by Helen Burke, San Francisco Sierra Club conservation chairman, who wanted the regional board's action reviewed. The ranch plans are to treat its wastes in a small plant, since it is isolated from other facilities, with the water sprayed over the land.

The environmental impact report on the proposal says that the water that isn't evaporated would be absorbed by the grasses.

However, Mrs. Burke says

this would have an adverse impact on water quality, that the regional board didn't do a proper job in setting waste discharge requirements and that it didn't consider other environmental factors.

These would include the plan's effect on wildlife habitat, noise, traffic congestion, and other matters because of the ranch.

While the regional board had 120 days to deny or issue waste discharge requirements, the environmental impact report wasn't ready within that time frame.

Therefore, the regional board issued waste discharge requirements. But the state board has ruled that the regional body should review that decision.

The state board, in its disputed decision, says the regional board's discharge requirements are adequate to safeguard water, but the board should have considered the other environmental matters.

In voting against the motion, Adams says it's desirable for regional boards to consider other environmental matters and that the attorney general has ruled that they can.

Physicians' assistants

Shortage of doctors creates new position

By PAT KENNEDY
There are doctors who process 40 to 60 patients an hour through their offices. A quick "stick out your tongue and say ahhh," or a thump on the rib cage, is about all they have time for. Needless to say, they make mistakes. Their malpractice lawsuit rate is high. But, if there are only one or two MD's in town and their offices are crowded, what doctor would turn away a sick patient so another could have a longer appointment? What patient would volunteer to go without medical attention? There's a doctor shortage in many parts of California, including Dublin and San Ramon. It's going to get worse before it gets better, according to a new commission, the Health Manpower Policy Commission, which has just delivered its first year's findings to the Legislature. According to the report, more family physicians will be retiring over the next few years than new doctors hanging out their shingles. That will lead to a critical shortage which will be felt in all areas of the state, commissioners warn. But doctors aren't the only ones who can set a broken leg, deliver a baby, stitch up a cut or diagnose tonsillitis. In many other countries, paramedics have responsibility for an amazing variety of medical procedures most Americans would only trust a doctor to administer. English midwives and Chinese "barefoot doctors," for example, free physicians to concentrate on non-routine problems. Even in this county, parents think nothing of a pediatrician's nurse giving a child a booster shot. That's along the same lines, although doctors until now have managed to preserve the sanctity of their profession by concentrating almost all the pill - dispensing, syringe - wielding, throat - swabbing power in the hands of MD's exclusively. Things started to change on the East Coast and in the Midwest a few years ago, when it became obvious that many rural communities just would never have their own physicians and, therefore, no easily available medical care unless someone other than a highly trained MD could run a medical office there. Out of this grew the idea of physicians' assistants (they call themselves PA's.) These are young men and women with some medical experience (whether as a volunteer or a professional) who get two years of intensive training. They come out well able to handle the lighter duties of a family doctor, or to carry medical care into some remote corner of the countryside where the population has no hope of attracting a full-fledged MD. Nelson Herlihy of Pleasanton, who is in charge of the laboratory is the Dublin - San Ramon Family Health Care Center, is one of the area's first PA trainees. He's one of 20 students at Stanford, chosen from 800 applicants, who are hoping to help fill the doctor gap.

Herlihy works full time in the San Ramon lab. He also attends classes at Stanford two evenings a week. Luckily, he's exempt from most of the biology, anatomy and physiology classes his colleagues are taking. He studied most of that at UC Santa Barbara, where he earned his bachelor's degree in biochemistry four years ago. Next year, the 26-year-old PA trainee will have to quit his San Ramon job to study medicine full time. He and his fellow students will work at Stanford's specialized clinics to receive a year of top-flight practical experience in diagnosing and treating a whole range of ailments, from skin disease to emergency calls. An Amador High School graduate, Herlihy doesn't plan to go on for his MD after becoming a physician's assistant. "The idea of using the PA program as a stepping stone is discouraged," he explains. "The idea is to fill a gap, especially in the rural areas where there is no physician. PA's have to work under the supervision of a physician. But the laws in California are loose enough so an MD can have responsibility for a PA and yet practice in a different town," he adds. The idea of setting up a practice in partnership with an MD in a town that needs more than one doctor doesn't dismay Herlihy. The PA builds up his own clientele and people often begin to refer to him as "doctor," he says. There is a law that PA's have to make it clear to their patients that they are not physicians, and patients must fill out a consent form every year to be treated by the PA. The PA candidates in Herlihy's class come from varied backgrounds. Many are nurses or former Army medical corpsmen. Half are women. They know there's not as much money in being a PA as there would be in becoming an MD. They also know they'll be spending most of their lives in little mountain villages, desert towns and other places not desirable to physicians, who like to be near hospitals and specialists as well as to live in a geographically appealing spot. Herlihy says he wouldn't mind living anywhere in California, be it ever so humble, like a Central Valley town. "You're within four hours of the ocean and skiing, no matter where you live in California," he notes. "On the other hand, I wouldn't want to be stuck in the Plains states, for example, or in the bayous or Appalachia." Herlihy doesn't think he's fussy compared to most doctors. "A doctor would rather starve in San Francisco than make $60,000 or $80,000 in Perth, N.D." "What can you do with $80,000 a year in Perth, N.D.?"

Only one school besides Stanford - UCLA - has a PA program this year. The idea is still in an experimental stage, to see whether it catches on with doctors and patients alike. It is being funded through Senate Bill 1224, which gives $3 million to the Health and Welfare Agency for the support of training programs through 1977. A similar program for nurses is making women like Jennifer Lang at the Family Health Care Center into "nurse practitioners," able to take over some of a doctor's more routine jobs much like a PA. Ms. Lang was trained in North Carolina, an area which seems to be generating some of the latest advances in medical manpower training. Twenty PA trainees, graduating in the summer of 1976, seems like a drop in the bucket. But after the experimental project catches on, more and more answers are expected to be found to the problem of doctors being spread too thin. Meanwhile - stick out your tongue and say "ahhh..."

ABAG exec panel wants regional agencies combined

Leshner News Bureau
Regional agencies in the Bay Area should be combined, says the Association of Bay Area Government (ABAG) executive committee. The committee Thursday approved a resolution calling for a single regional government. That resolution is similar to legislation which Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond, intends to introduce in this year's legislative session. But the ABAG resolution was not passed without some controversy. Final vote on the issue was 16 to 6 after a number of executive committee members, most notably John Tuteur of Napa County, suggested changes. The resolution wording had been worked out between ABAG president Warren Boggess, a Contra Costa supervisor and officials of the regional Metropolitan Transportation Commission, Bay Area Sewage Services Agency (BASSA), Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, Bay Conservation and Development Commission and the North Central Coast Regional Commission. ABAG executive director Revan Tranter said Knox has agreed to include many of the ideas from ABAG in his proposed legislation. Veteran executive committee members chided Tuteur for trying to change resolution, a move which they felt might jeopardize ABAG's longstanding fight for a single regional agency with planning powers. Tuteur tried and failed to have the resolution studied by an ABAG legislative committee, but the proposal was squelched by members who declared the Knox proposal would be halfway through the legislature by the time ABAG got around to making a recommendation. Executive committee member Louise Giersch of Antioch reminded Tuteur that ABAG represents cities and counties, not the views of the regional agencies executive committee members might also serve on. Tuteur is also a smog board director. "We're looking for comprehensiveness and the question is whether we feel this is the appropriate thing to back. What we do here will not affect one whit what Knox does. It just says that we concur with what president Boggess voted on," Mrs. Giersch continued. Committee member Donald Dillon of Fremont declared, if the ABAG group "can't at least support this general set of principles" he would consider resigning. The single regional agency backed by ABAG would:

• Be composed of half directly elected and half appointed members.
• Develop and maintain a comprehensive regional plan.
• Have appeals and veto power "assuring the consistency with the regional plan of actions of regional significance by all local and regional agencies, but no power to reverse denials at local government level." That, explained Boggess, means if ABAG decided a local housing or shopping center development for instance, it would also be required to get regional agency approval. He conceded that many local cities and counties might simply forego any consideration of regional matters, tossing the entire decision to the regional body.

Nutcracker Man

In 1959 Mary D. Leakey discovered the fossil remains of Zinjanthropus bosei, an ancestor of man from the Lower Pleistocene Age, in the Olduvai Gorge in Tanzania. Zinjanthropus is commonly known as Nutcracker Man.

'Y' names chairman

Randy Schlientz, Twin Valley YMCA board member, has been named Chairman of the Board of Managers of the local "Y". Conscientious and civic minded men and women concerned with the promotion and activities for youth and families of the Livermore, Pleasanton, Dublin and Sunol areas comprise the board. The Twin Valley "Y" has also announced a two-night, three-day winter hike in Yosemite National Park for Junior High and Senior High school students, both men and women, who want to learn about snow camping and snowshoeing. The Feb. 15, 16, 17 trek is geared for inexperienced snow campers. Ten spaces are available for the $29 event, led by Gary and Rose Findley. The fee includes food, snowshoes, transportation and insurance.

Election Notes

The Associated Students of Chabot College will hold a Candidates' Night at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 29, in the Chabot College Auditorium, 25555 Hesperian Blvd., Hayward.
ARNOLD THOMPSON
Thompson has indicated he is opposed to the first of an expected number of public employee collective bargaining bills that has been introduced in Sacramento. The measure, Thompson claims, is a "membership monopoly" system. It does not provide an improved bargaining position for public employees. It instead simply provides a system in which employees will be forced to join a large organization, pay its initiation fees, dues and get less representation than they now have.
FLOYD MORI
Three prominent Pleasantonites have joined in an appeal for funds to aid the campaign of Floyd Mori, candidate for the 15th Assembly District. "It is not very often that we have the opportunity to witness the emergence of a real leader in our valley," the message accompanying that appeal states. The letter is signed by Larry Lindsey, Bob Philcox and John Stanley. Philcox, like Mori, is a member of the Pleasanton city council.

RUDY TRIVISO
Triviso has received the endorsement of Gene Rubio and Mary Amaral of the Livermore Democratic Club. Amaral and Rubio have also announced the formation of the "Friends of Triviso Committee" for the Livermore Valley.
MARC ELLIOT
Citing the recent granting of Pacific Gas and Electric's 16th rate increase in two years as an example, Elliot has charged the state Public Utilities Commission with "not working in the public's best interest."

OUTLINE PLANS FOR MARCH OF DIMES
Chris Beratis, Mrs. Milton Dunham, Mrs. Harold Hutchinson and John Moore.

Name 'march' chairmen here

Chairmen of the 1975 Mothers' March against birth defects for the Alameda County March of Dimes are Mrs. Harold Hutchinson of Dublin, and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dunham of Pleasanton.

They will be assisted by community chairmen Chris Beratis of Pleasanton and John Moore of Dublin.

The group is preparing "Pass Me Along" collection kits which have proved so effective in past campaigns.

Special large envelopes marked "Pass Me Along" are sent to designated addresses, with each large envelope containing smaller ones to hold individual contributions.

Each household uses one envelope, then the kit is passed along to the next home until the last address on the list is reached. At this point the envelope is sealed and sent to a collection center.

Pleasanton's center is the Bank of America on Main Street. In Dublin the collection point is Wells Fargo Bank on Amador Valley Boulevard.

"Birth defects are the number one child health problem in the United States," reports Mrs. Hutchinson.

Commission vote due

Car pools forming for County meet Tuesday

Women in the valley will form car pools Tuesday to attend the historic meeting at which the Alameda County Board of Supervisors will vote yes or nay on the proposal for a Status of Women Commission.

On the supervisors' agenda is the recommendation by the county's Human Relations Commission that a separate Status of Women Commission be formed. The 9:30 a.m. meeting will be held in the county administration building. Proponents anticipate a favorable vote.

"But we're interested in the composition of the Commission," Dorris Fagan of Livermore said Friday. "So we want to fill the meeting chambers with women."

Ms. Fagan, Connie Hoseman of Alameda and Attorney Hermina Strauss of Oakland are the coordinators of the interim committee formed to establish a committee to work for the Status of Women Commission.

They'll urge a Commission of 15 voting members, with each Supervisor appointing three.

"We don't care how many ex-officio members they appoint," Fagan said.

All who would like to attend via car pool are urged to call Ms. Fagan, 443-2894 or June Price, 447-8798.

Speaker

Mrs. Harold Keperling, a past president of the Livermore Woman's Club will review books about famous men when the Alameda District Women's Clubs executive board meets Thursday, Jan. 23 at the Rockridge Women's Club in Berkeley.

Columbian Women, auxiliary to the Knights of Columbus, Father Patrick Power No. 4588, will meet Jan. 20 at 8 p.m. at the Livermore home of Ramona Gazzaway.

Members with contributions of usable clothing or other items for the Indian missions should contact Mary Mitchell at 447-8245, or Dee Shaw at 443-4114.

plans for this year, centering on the Spring Show scheduled for April 25 and 26 at Howard Johnson's in Dublin, and other plans still tentative. Contributions for the Bicentennial year will also be discussed.

Director of the Guild, Donna Franks, especially welcomes spinners, sculptors and artists to join the group.

Gala wine tasting

The largest event of its kind in Northern California, Children's Hospital Medical Center's 19th annual Wine Tasting will be held Saturday, Jan. 25 from 5:30 to 8 p.m. in the elegant surroundings of the Turf Club, Golden Gate Fields, Albany.

"Twenty-five superlative white, red and rose wines will be poured by 13 Napa Valley vintners who want their 'bottled poetry' to be evaluated seriously," said Mrs. Everett Bertillon, chairman of the tasting.

"Thus there are no distractions; no 'added attractions.'" Mountains of cubed French bread and cheeses are the only refreshments, and these are available not really to quell hunger pangs, but to clear the palate between wines, she explained.

Purists who attend the Hospital benefit are also happy to learn that the wine is sampled in an atmosphere free of cigarette or cigar smoke," says James Beard of St. Helena, executive secretary of the Napa Vintners Association.

Adding to each guest's enjoyment is a program describing each wine poured, with notes regarding proper temperature and foods which it best enhances, as well as a suggested method for sampling.

No tickets will be available at the door but may be obtained in advance from Branch members, or by calling the Branch Office weekdays, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., 652-9202.

All proceeds go to the unique Medical Center which offers total care exclusively to patients from birth to 18 years in Northern California.

Women invited to join in 4-part harmony vocalizing

An open house audition for women who like to sing will be sponsored by the Golden Hills chapter of Sweet Adelines, Inc. Tuesday Jan. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Presbyterian Church in Pleasanton.

"If you like to sing, come and enjoy yourself with barbershop harmony and find out what part suits you best," says chapter president Judy Fallon. "Reading music is not a requirement, and no prior knowledge of barbershop harmony singing is necessary.

"With our type of music there is always a need for women with low voices, and we would like to increase our bass section."

Sweet Adelines, Inc. is an international non-profit organization of women to promote the American folk art of singing four-part barbershop harmony. According to Mrs. Fallon, the organization has 550 chapters and over 400 registered quartets throughout the United States and Canada.

The Golden Hills chapter has 20 members who reside in the Livermore-Amador Valley and Castro Valley.

Charlie Brown of Century 21 explains title insurance

Anytime one makes a purchase, one can be certain there are going to be costs involved. In a real estate purchase, beyond payment costs, there are "closing costs", and among these is the Title Insurance Policy. "The necessity for Title Insurance," explains Charlie Brown of Century 21, Livermore, is inherent in its name. It insures you, the buyer, that the seller has clear title to the property. All the verbal assurances in the world go out the window, if, after you have paid out good money, assumed the loan, and then found out that:

1. The seller had been declared mentally incompetent last year.
2. He handled his own divorce and really doesn't have his wife off the deed.
3. He owes federal, state or county taxes.
4. He sold hurriedly because he is being sued, but still has a lien on the property because he didn't sell on time.
5. He forgot to tell you of money borrowed on the property.

6. He sold the house to someone else the same day he sold it to you. (Don't laugh, it's happened!)
  7. The property is in foreclosure.
  8. There's an easement on the property that effects the value.
- Sound preposterous? Not at all. Charlie goes on to explain, "I have seen, personally, almost all of the above happen. The one per cent or so that a Title Insurance Policy costs is considerably less than the court costs, attorney's fees, and aspirin you might need."

HOME OF THE WEEK

VALLEY REALTY, LIVERMORE, OFFERS SOMETHING YOUR FAMILY REALLY NEEDS...SPACE. You can really spread out in this large 5 bedroom Redwood on nearly 1/4 acre lot at 721 Saturn Way. Good side yard access with cement pad already in. It's one of the best buys in Livermore at $55,500. Call Ken Wolf at Valley for details, 443-3262.

New V.A. legislation lauded by Mike Hilde of Alcosta Realty

The newly signed VA legislation effecting real estate sales has been synopsised for us by Mike Hilde of ALCOSTA GALLERY OF HOMES in Dublin. Mike explained that the raise of the VA guarantee from $12,400 to $17,500 will enable VA buyers to buy a more expensive home. In addition, a VA buyer selling his home with a paid-off loan can buy another home without the usual "compelling reason" for buying. Previously, for a veteran to use a GI loan again two conditions had to be met: the old loan had to be paid off and the vet had to have a compelling reason for selling (job transfer, illness, divorce, etc.) Now the only requirement is that the loan be paid off. "Further," Mike stated, "condominiums that meet VA standards will now be able to be appraised and financed with VA terms. This entire package of legislation has definite benefits for both VA buyers and sellers as well as for realtors."

Carl Hill, has shown some real style in his selections to expand his real estate firm. Long active in ranch and commercial property sales throughout the state, Carl is now developing residential sales as well. Also busy in the Pleasanton office at 818 Main St., above the Cheese Factory, are Diane Benscoter and Helen Butcher. Both of these gals are married to men connected with the skyways, but find their own interests closer to the ground...in residential real estate sales!

AD LIBS

By BILL HAYDEN

THE DOUBLE TAKE - Pleasanton: Gracedaryl Dickinson has purchased the interest of partner Blanca Hatch in the Double Take, 641 Main Street. She is now the sole owner. The shop is still featuring pants, tops, long dresses for the discerning woman and you're invited to see the colorful styles in stock.

SMORGA BOB'S - Livermore: Heading out to eat at 4193 First Street? Smorga Bob's has a great new deal going into operation on Sunday. They're serving BRUNCH from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. for only $2.85. This is the same reasonable price charged for the Sunday Dinner. The brunch menu will include such goodies as ham, country sausage, scrambled eggs, French toast, fresh fruit, a variety of juices, hot cereal, grits and other tasty morsels.

LIVERMORE STATION - Livermore: If you haven't been to LIAHO's exciting restaurant and potables parlor on L Street you've got to get in gear and give yourself a treat. You simply can't imagine what has been done with the old station! A lot of enthusiasm and money have been poured into making the establishment one you'll find a delight to see. The atmosphere's great, ditto food and double ditto drinks. Well, not necessarily in that order. The upstairs cocktail lounge is ideal for relaxing with friends after a hard day's labor and, I'll have to add, one of the friendliest group of people I've ever run across knock themselves out to serve you. Most of the staff are from the East Coast and are out in our sunny clime for a first time. They'll be a great addition to the community if all us natives just stop in and say "hello." Even if you don't eat or drink or have any friends, you'll enjoy the turn-of-the-century artifacts and photographs. Tell John or Larry that Bill sent you.

BURTON'S SHOES - Livermore: If you haven't been past Second and M Streets in Livermore you haven't been to Burton's semi-annual shoe sale. (January version). If you haven't, then you've missed some great values in foot-fashion. If you haven't, there's still time to take advantage of all the savings available to you because there are still many items on hand. Manager Dick Fitch always keeps sufficient stock to provide with a proper fitting at a very reasonable price. One of the great advantages of a Burton sale: They always emphasize "We cheerfully refund." We gladly exchange. This practically eliminates an unhappy customer.

KEN'S CAMERAS - Livermore: If you want things to develop where your pictures are concerned, the best bet I suggest you do them yourself by taking advantage of the rental darkrooms at Ken's Cameras in Livermore Valley Square. Betty Cappello, owner, also wants to stress she rents equipment in case you want to take some spectacular pictures but can't see investing a fortune in all the necessities. Having a party? One unusual entertainment would be to rent some Super-8 sound film and a projector from Ken's Cameras. Comedies and cartoons are available. One final plug. The annual inventory sale is now in progress and there are many great values in cameras, projectors and darkroom equipment. Discounts run from 20 to 50 percent.

CACTUS JACK'S - Livermore: Earle Swanson and Jack Mangin, owners, are currently stressing the hours at 3571 First Street. ### State tax book has handy label to file returns

Many taxpayer errors, particularly those that delay refunds, can be eliminated by using the pre-addressed label on the State income tax return booklet. Peel the label from the return booklet and place it on your form 540, suggested Martin Huff, Executive Officer of the Franchise Tax Board. Income tax returns with labels can be quickly processed since they contain necessary identifying information. If you have a refund due, the use of the pre-addressed label will help insure delivery of your check to the correct address, said Huff.

Do-it-yourself clinics set

George Wallace, manager of Grossman's Livermore store at 958 Portola Ave., today announced a free school of Do-It-Yourself Clinics to be held every Tuesday beginning Jan. 21 from 7 to 9 p.m.

This school will consist of 4 free clinics covering every major activity of do-it-yourselfers in improving their homes. Geared to both beginners and to experienced handymen and handymen, the school will be climaxed with a Diploma of Achievement awarded every one attending.

In addition, valuable free door prizes will be awarded at each session to those attending — and articles used in doing-it-yourself activities (such as shop aprons, etc.) will be given free to every one. Free refreshments will be served.

What home owners can do to improve and increase the value and comfort of their homes through improvements and repairs will be demonstrated by experts — how to increase the size of or add a room, how to install a new bathroom or a new kitchen, how to reduce heating and cooling costs by proper insulation, how to decrease work around the house by installing automatic equipment — such as sprinklers, etc.

Registration and attendance at these Do-It-Yourself Clinics are free to the public; everyone interested is invited to attend. There are no fees or charges of any kind, no purchases necessary.

Grossman's originated the first Do-It-Yourself School on the East Coast thirty-one years ago and has pioneered in the development of this type of education. Each session, incidentally, will conclude with a question-and-answer period for those who have specific problems.

One of Grossman's innovations is the complete range of HOW TO booklets which are free to all attending Grossman's clinics or visiting Grossman stores; these folders cover practically every phase of home improvement, remodeling, and repairing.

An Editorial

Where is the pride of Pleasanton's past?

It has been always been the center of activity, for one reason or another. "Hay, hops and horses" was the earliest claim to Pleasanton's fame, and this most fertile piece of soil produced all three in great abundance, and quality. That was also the turn - of - the - century era when local men fought to provide "the finest racing oval in the west," and then later fought again to make this "the home of the Alameda County Fair."

Phoebe Apperson Hearst enkindled a new kind of "international stature" for the community she came to love; men of vision planted trees along all the entrances into the city core, trees that would shelter a future generation with their majestic height, and women would lead a stubborn fight to prevent any latter - day developer from chopping down even a single downtown elm.

"There has always been a great sense of community in and about Pleasanton," Norma Kolln once said. It is an opinion shared by generations of this town's builders and boosters. But it is a driving force that we appear to be losing in the melange of housing tracts, individualized neighborhoods and separated retail interests which seem to dominate the Pleasanton of the seventies.

This reporter walked along Main Street the other day, for perhaps our 5000th time, and but it was not a journey like all those others. Papers and garbage littered much of the sidewalk, spilling into the street. Signs that had declared "SALE NOW ON" six weeks ago were still in the same window. The interior of some of those stores was sad, almost depressing.

We returned to the office to find Councilman William Herlihy waiting to share a word. "The vandalism that is destroying new trees almost as fast as the city can plant them makes us wonder if we can any longer justify such a program," Herlihy said. And we talked of the "frustration of trying to regain that sense of pride" in the community we all share, and claim to love.

We can recall when the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce — that bastion of competitive free enterprise — found no goal so important as the removal of wooden power poles from throughout the city's skyline, or the purchase of planter boxes to brighten the downtown scene. Today there are no more than two or three retail merchants active in that organization, and virtually none from the new shopping centers which capture the bulk of this community's market dollars.

This newspaper has written in years past with loving pride of the town, the setting, the people who make up this one hamlet. We recall often the stories of the past, so that a new breed of Pleasantonite might be inspired to capture that same verve. We yield to no one on the scale of "Home town boosters we have known." But we would be less than faithful to that calling if we lacked the courage to speak out when things are wrong, when the trend is bad, when the "spirit of P-Town" threatens to leave us.

In a year when people have less dollars to shop, to travel, to do the flamboyant thing, there is opportunity for the small town to capture the center of public attention. The local store becomes more interesting, the high school production more attractive, the home - town social more likely to hold our attention. The suburban hamlet can always survive that economic crunch which might otherwise destroy the larger city. In 1975 we have the opportunity to improve our community, and enhance our own fortune, despite the nation's economic ills.

We will realize those goals only if we begin by rekindling that pride in our neighborhood, our park, our store, which has always made this town "a most pleasant place in which to live."

Showcase of doom

By JIM DOURGARIAN

SACRAMENTO — It started out to be a hearing on California's supply and demand of water.

It was a two - day hearing conducted by the Senate Agriculture and Water Resources Committee, chaired by Sen. Howard Way, R - Fresno.

However, the hearing instead became a showcase of doom and gloom regarding the world food crisis, whether true or envisioned, rather than the amount of water the state has and will need.

There is a relationship between food and water, of course, but California supplies about 25 per cent of the nation's overall food supplies and only a fraction of the world's food supplies.

A discussion of what California can do to aid the world food crisis therefore becomes off the subject matter at hand.

It seems apparent that the hearing was more of a showcase for some water groups to use the food crisis as a new bargaining tool in building more water projects to give them more water.

This extra water would then, the reasoning goes, be used by agriculture to provide more food and solve food problems.

However, the key seems to be the construction of the controversial peripheral canal around the Sacramento - San Joaquin Delta.

It becomes more and more obvious as time passes that pro water development groups are smarting from the appointments of environmentalist to key state positions by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Included in this group is Claire Dedrick, California Resources Agency Secretary and a member of Brown's cabinet.

If such an environmentalist is named as Director of the California Water Resources Department, as some groups fear, the cringing will be felt from southern to northern California.

The hearing, in addition, must be considered somewhat suspect because only 14 groups were invited although some could be considered environmentally oriented.

Once news of the hearing was circulated among other groups, they clamored to Way's committee staff about being invited so they too could speak. They were invited.

However, this then gave the committee a shot at putting a little heat on some of the agencies whose philosophies don't fit members of the committee.

Way's committee has long had a majority of members who are pro water development and anti such agencies as the California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission and the State WaterResources Control Board.

Some of the formal questions asked by the staff did relate somewhat to the state's water supply, but the indication was that the committee really wanted to know, "Why have you been thwarting us?"

The hearing, while fragmented in following its original theme, did develop some information that was extremely interesting and worthwhile.

Dr. Harold Carter, chairman of the Agriculture Economics Department at the University of California, Davis, brought out some information that some committee members still aren't ready to accept.

He agreed with Way that population control is the key to many of the food and water problems currently being experienced. In simple terms, the world has too many people and it's still growing.

Carter also agrees that the world can look to other lands, such as South America, for land to increase food production.

The question is, however, at what expense. "Should the world continue to grow, demanding more food and water and demand that jungle areas be developed as farm lands?"

The price to be paid would be the destruction of the jungle as we know it today and the extinction of several animals that depend on the jungle for survival.

Simple stated, the world may be able to feed itself, but what quality life will it have under these conditions.

Furthermore, how long could a degraded life continue even with the jungles turned to farm lands.

And remember, Carter says, that the best lands are the ones that are farmed first. The remainder may be marginal in their capacity to produce at best.

This is the key since the world's farmable lands are their production capabilities are finite, but the world's population isn't.

New center dedicated

The District Educational Center, administrative headquarters for the Amador and Pleasanton school districts, was dedicated during an open house Thursday afternoon. Making brief dedication remarks were Karen Finn, above, clerk of the Pleasanton Elementary School District board, and Supt. Bruce Newlin. At left is Amador Valley High School principal Ralph Laird. The week in retrospect

Vitality of schools

This is a busy time for our Pleasanton schools.

It is also a time tinged with sadness, what with the death this past Monday of Tom Hart.

Mr. Hart thrived on the vitality of our schools. It was through this person-to-person, "how are you, let's talk" approach that he helped create the positive attitudes that are prevalent in the districts today.

Everywhere this writer looks, I see people communicating . . . whether it be as part of a committee trying to assemble input for graduation requirements, problem solving through a citizens committee or attempting to give the children of the districts more worthwhile experiences (i.e. Outdoor Education, building a playground at Vintage Hills School or Planning an environmental area at Walnut Grove).

We are not so naive that we do not see the potential for setbacks within the district. Certainly, the impending bond sale, in order to trigger Phase II construction at Foothill High School, the general economic outlook as it applies to schools and the uncertainties of the future make one tend to proceed with caution and negative feelings.

But I don't believe that was ever the spirit with which Mr. Hart took up each new challenge, whether it be a personnel matter or salary negotiations.

It is this positive spirit, the human approach, that we hope will be remembered by those who plot the course and the destinies of the districts.

This is not a time to become bogged down in negative or unnecessary discourse. There is no room for the "educational-ese" such as I have seen on some recent occasions at board meetings.

The problems, whether they be graduation requirements or the teachers' role in participative management, must be immediately and clearly defined. Those involved must then set out to solve the problem without getting bogged down in unwieldy semantics and personal prejudices.

I don't appreciate, and I'm sure the rest of the lay public doesn't either, the mountain of "educational-ese" that sometimes emanates from our educators. It only seems to complicate and put off solutions to relatively easy problems.

We can communicate just as well with simple sentences verbalized in a positive and straight-forward manner.

By AL FISCHER

The first thing you'll need in approaching this special election to fill that 15th Assembly District post is a program. You can't tell the players without a program, folks. Then a dictionary. A glossary on "political definitions and affiliations," would be helpful. This is one election when semantics might count for more than promises.

The editorial staff for this one newspaper has completed in - depth interviews (Translation: More than 60 minutes, less than 2 hours) with half of that field of 15 hopefuls. We found them all very presentable, faithful to mother, apple pie and home rule. They are also foxy as hell. Skilled in the use of the right word, a clever phrase. And the very best apppendage to their partisan affiliation.

Not one simple Republican or Democratic in the whole bunch. Our count to date produces three "Independent Democrats," one "Enlightened Republican" (Watergate has done wonders), one "Conservative Democrat" and another who admits to being "more liberal than some but with basic conservative approaches," whatever that means. It is very much like shadow boxing with a bunch of Arabs.

Only none of this political bunch has any money. Not a dime. Estimates for expenditures per - candidate in this first round of campaigning range from a paltry $12,000 (LeClaire) to "something less than $25,000 (Oakes). And that folks, includes just the front runners. Everybody is counting on Grass Roots to pull off the victory. Mori figures on leaving no front door unknocked. The Mori team of "grass roots" workers' figures to knock on some 35,000. Fortunately, the good citizens of the 15th District have reduced their registered numbers to a point where a cripple with a white cane could reach all the bona fide voters. But he/she would also need a helicopter. It's a big spread, this 15th. In past campaigns there is evidence that candidates have been lost just finding their way over the ridge from Hayward to Dublin; even some of the seasoned incumbents have disappeared trying to navigate that pass.

But we digress. Back to the "Unabridged Guide To Political Aspirants In The 15th Assembly District." First off we must reveal that there are no unabridged candidates. Each one has been carefully edited to protect the innocent voter. There is not a Mayor Daley or Barry Goldwater in the 15th field. Nothing but middle - of - the - roaders, mainstreamers, men (and woman) for all seasons.

Bill Vandenburg does not deny that he is "more liberal than most," but his campaign literature still leans on the "Independent Democratic" refrain. Joyce LeClaire would also like to borrow that line, although this pert young lady needs no prefix to establish her independence, or her party loyalty. She's probably the "purest Democrat" in the race.

Floyd Mori is "the conservative Democrat," and for once, the prefix seems to fit. He's so conservative in fact that no bona fide Demo group is about to give Floyd its endorsement, if indeed there are any "bona fide party groups" in the South County. Floyd is however the self-proclaimed "voice of the minorities," so there you are.

Marc Elliott is possibly the nearest thing to a "party regular" in this production, a title he earns as the assistant to the late incumbent Carlos Bee, but for no other apparent reason. For what it's worth, none of the "campaign watchers" rate Marc among the front runners.

Guy Puccio is another "also - ran" who fails to stir up any real concern in that field of 15. Even though he came closer than any Republican in recent times to mounting a serious challenge to Assemblyman Bee, Puccio has to take second place to George Oakes as "the Republican to beat" in that tri - party second ballot.

Oakes is the real mystery in this one, that is if you listen to the field. His detractors rate George everywhere from "a tough customer in any campaign" to "an old - line Hayward power who is running once too often." Another "unknown quantity worth watching" is Dick Oliver, the Union City councilman who is unique in that he doesn't have to divide his home - town constituency with any other contender, and with a solid 6000 votes from those UC faithful, plus a thousand here and a thousand there, might just hit the magic 7500 which most contenders agree "could be enough to assure a spot on that second ballot."

That's the same route Floyd Mori counts on to pave his way past that Feb. 4 hurdle. But Floyd has Joyce LeClaire and even Marc Elliott to carve up the local vote, and therein lies Floyd's biggest challenge.

At least that's what "they" are saying, as the South County's first real election test in eons romps past the first pole. With estimates for that Feb. 4 turnout running as low as 20 percent of the district's registered vote, it's not impossible for any "outsider" to mount a spirited campaign, and sneak in with as little as 6000 votes. That's what has the major camps worried. At this point the only candidate assured a spot on that second - round March ballot is the American Independent (they say he is a "MODERATE American Independent," naturally) and the likely vote leader on that first ballot is a Republican land developer, in a district loaded with Democrats and environmentalists.

It's not what you call your everyday election.

Sensible safety

Citing the "26 percent increase in school bus accidents just in California," a Washington - based agency attacks "inadequate roads and bridges" as a major cause of injury within that category. The agency cites one "inadequate bridge" in particular — an ancient but charming wood - and - steel structure in rural Indiana which is "so shaky the school bus has to stop to let children cross on foot" before the empty bus can then make its crossing.

Even more impressive, but not mentioned by that safety panel, is the news that the century - old bridge was saved from demolition by the foresight of those Indiana leaders who suggested that one busload of children having to walk across one short, wooden bridge, twice each school day, is a small price to pay if it means saving that span for posterity.

Indiana teaches us that good safety, common sense and a community's heritage can all be served with a small application of that oldest of energy sources: shanks' mare.

Letters to the editor:

No change here

Editor, The Times:

I am writing in reference to an article in your December 31, 1974, edition ("How Churches Keep Pace With The Changing Times" by Lilly Ault). In reading the article it became apparent that at least one statement was erroneous: not all churches in the valley offer "a contemporary service as well as a traditional service" for their members.

I do not speak as an official spokesman of any group, but as an interested christian. I have attended services of the Church of Christ on East Avenue in Livermore for six years and our "services" have not changed to provide a service for the members. We gather to praise God and as the title of christian implies to emulate Jesus Christ. Since, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and forever." (Hebrews 13:8, KJV), is a biblical truth, those things which where christlike 2000 years ago are still christlike. Since Jesus Christ does not change, that which is traditional must also be contemporary.

Further I think it significant that the christian's worship should be enjoyable to God, and not entertain ng to the worshipper. The Church's mission should be to convert the world, not to be converted to the world (Romans 12:1-2).

In Christian love,
Nicholas J. Roberts

With due respect

Editor, The Times:

It was reported in the Valley Times of Sunday, January 12, that Richard Collins of San Ramon is going to wage a war against immorality, permissiveness, and the national debt. He identifies "depravity and moral degeneration" as "Public Enemy No. 1."

In his analysis of the fundamental cause of our difficulties, I could not agree with Mr. Collins more. However, when it comes to his solution to the problem, I cannot disagree more. I say this with due respect to Mr. Collins and with appreciation of his motives, for I believe him to be a sincere man.

He proposes a government "program to teach, to indoctrinate, to expose, to each and every citizen the values of honor, justice, . . . and all other virtues." We have such a government's production, recommendation, and often selection of our schools' textbooks, and the promotion of ideas and values through TV and other mass media. Much of this indoctrination promotes the amorality which Mr. Collins deplors. The present government program is the prime culprit.

To expect our government (or any government) to suddenly reverse its stand on morality, when we have seen that those at the very top levels don't even understand the word, is the height of wishful thinking.

It has been said that people get the kind of government they deserve. The place to begin is in the hearts of the citizens at the grass roots level. If the people set high standards for themselves, they will also set high standards for their representatives. Those who can't or won't meet those standards will get unselected.

Perhaps I also am indulging in wishful thinking to hope that the citizens of this nation will experience a moral reawakening. However, there are many signs that it is happening. Such an awakening can only come for each individual from within; it cannot be imposed by legislation or achieved by a governmental program of indoctrination.

Those of us who call ourselves Christians believe that Christ has provided the solution to the problem, both for individuals and for all humanity. He showed us by His example what He means by true standards of morality. He offered the ultimate sacrifice in our names to save us because we fall short of meeting those standards. His program is a winner.

To those who are following Christ, may I humbly suggest that you continue, to those who are not, may I suggest that you consider what it is the Christians have that gives them their inner Peace and continuous joy amid the trials we all experience in this age of amorality, corruption, violence, and peril.

Ridiculous

Editor, The Times:

Your editorial on "Catfish" Hunter and the fantastic salary they are paying him was excellent! I agree more than 100 per cent. The whole idea is ridiculous. As you say, a family man with a few kids has to stay away from the games because of cost. I can imagine what tickets will be in a few years. Out of sight! Someone will have to pay the inflated salaries and it will be the customer!

Homeowners urge Davona park

SAN RAMON — The San Ramon Homeowners' Association voted unanimously Thursday night to support the recommendation of Valley Community Services District Citizens' Advisory Board in VCSD's purchase and development of a five-acre park on Seeno Property east of Davona Drive.

The Seeno property purchase has been discussed by VCSD for the past two years, and will be taken up for vote at Tuesday's VCSD board meeting.

Albert D. Seeno Construction Co. Pittsburg owns the parcel.

The Contra Costa County Public Works Department reported to the SRHA that their engineers' study of the speed limit on San Ramon Valley Boulevard between Alcosta and Crow Canyon Road had resulted in the department's recommending the limit remain at 50 mph.

SRHA had opposed a move to lower the limit, contending that the Boulevard could be made safer by the improvement of bike paths.

Two subdivision proposals were scrutinized by the association. A Boise-Cascade project slated as the first development on the east side of Alcosta Boulevard, and a Leadership Homes

"Countryview" development intended for the east side of Alcosta, but on the south end of the valley near Crow Canyon Road were examined.

SRHA recommended the 6.4-acre, 20 lot Boise-Cascade project be scanned by the San Ramon Valley General Plan Review Committee, and that the developers comply with the school district's "Developers' Assistance Policy."

That policy asks developers to contribute land or fees to the school district in view of the increased educational needs imposed by developments.

It was further requested that

Boise-Cascade obtain earthquake and slide insurance on homes in the project, since an active fault is known to exist on the site.

The two slide zones on the location also require insurance, according to the association.

Immediate plantings on cut-and-fill slopes were also recommended, according to association President Mike Wahlig.

The association went against the county's recommendation that the main road of the development not empty onto Alcosta Boulevard, insisting that the county's alternative did not seem practical.

San Ramon Valley incorporation backers expect new campaign soon

By JOHN KEARNS

Some of those who supported San Ramon Valley incorporation in the past think a drive will begin again soon but most don't want to take active roles in the movement.

Gene Rolandelli, one of the organizers of incorporation two years ago, said he has voluminous material from the last incorporation drive and is willing to turn it over to people interested in starting another drive.

"If it is to be successful," said Rolandelli, "I think a new group of people should work for it."

He said he hasn't heard of a movement starting for incorporation in the valley yet but expects that one will start. "People are still talking about it," he said.

Local control was the primary issue in the last election, with supporters of incorporation arguing that the valley was far removed from county officials who control land planning in the area.

Presently local valley groups advise county agencies and boards of their opinions on various local issues but have no legal authority to take action.

Roy Bloss, another active supporter of incorporation in the past, said it is too early now to form an opinion on the success of a new incorporation move.

He said study will need to be given to the issue. In the last election, incorporation lost by a narrow margin and Bloss thinks the same narrow margin still exists in the valley.

He said a "philosophical split" existed in the valley two years ago regarding incorporation.

In the last election a tax-free city was proposed. Whether an incorporation move could propose a tax-free city now will still have to be determined.

Eric Hasseltine, another supporter of incorporation in the past, feels the valley will have to form a closer bond in order for incorporation to pass.

Injured Lopez insures Mat victory

BY MIKE ZAMPA

The anatomy of a shoulder injury still puzzles Sergio Lopez. But there's no doubt about the pain when it gnaws and swells in your mind.

It nearly overcame him Friday night, before a stunning pin of Russ Wilson, leading Granada High to a 37-12 rout of Livermore in EBAL wrestling.

"The doctor says it's an AC joint," Lopez explained, his nose scrunched up in a quizzical stare. "I was in pain when I was pinning cause I was on that shoulder."

Lopez' pin at 167 pounds was the instrument of victory in Granada's most important wrestling triumph.

It gave the Matadors a 25-9 lead with three matches left. For 177 pounder Steve Jaeger, it meant he merely had to stave off a pin or superior decision for Livermore opponent Doug Pope, and Granada would slide by.

Pope stopped Jaeger, 7-6, with a third period reversal, and the meet was over.

Now with two dual meets left in the season, Granada is near its second ever varsity sports championship. All that remains are meets with Amador Valley and Monte Vista.

"Something could still happen," Granada coach Steve Page warned afterwards. "Our kids could just decide to throw away the jocks."

From his bubbling demeanor though, Page isn't counting on it.

Nor was he expecting the pin from Lopez, who vowed he wouldn't miss the biggest meet of his career.

Sergio damaged the shoulder last Wednesday in a winning effort against Dublin High. At first he assumed an old elbow injury was merely flaring up.

But Thursday the doctor confirmed the business about the ailing AC joint.

"He told me not to even practice for one to two weeks," Lopez said. "But I went to the doctor Thursday, and wrestled Friday."

"I had a long talk with the Sergio and doctor before the meet," Page said. "He missed Livermore last year because of the dislocated elbow, and there was no way he was going to miss this." Page said there was little risk of serious injury by Lopez' early return to the mat.

"Just a lot of pain — a lot of pain."

Lopez required two injury timeouts during his match with Livermore's Wilson, totalling a minute and a half. Page asked the giddy youngster if he wanted to press on with the throbbing shoulder. "Damn right," Lopez blurted back.

Wilson controlled much of the early action, "he kept getting the shoulder," Lopez explained, until the third period. He led, 3-2 with 1:30 left, when Lopez whipped a reverse. Nine seconds later, Lopez recorded the fall.

"His head was out there, so I just pulled it in and turned him over," Lopez explained.

Of course there were other key matches for Granada en route to Lopez' heroics. The first was Brett Nadeau's 10-2 upset of Jack Baird at 97 pounds. After a scoreless first period, Nadeau piled up five points in the second, and third rounds, to top Livermore's long-time ace.

"Everybody told me Nadeau couldn't beat Baird," Page revealed. "But I didn't think so. Nadeau is coming up now, and Baird is going down."

It was the sophomore's 18th varsity win against two defeats.

That, and Wayne Stoner's stunning 2-1 squeaker over Darryl Payne, were big boosts for the Matadors, Page said.

Stoner, an underdog at 114, received a penalty point with one second left in the match when Payne was charged for stalling.

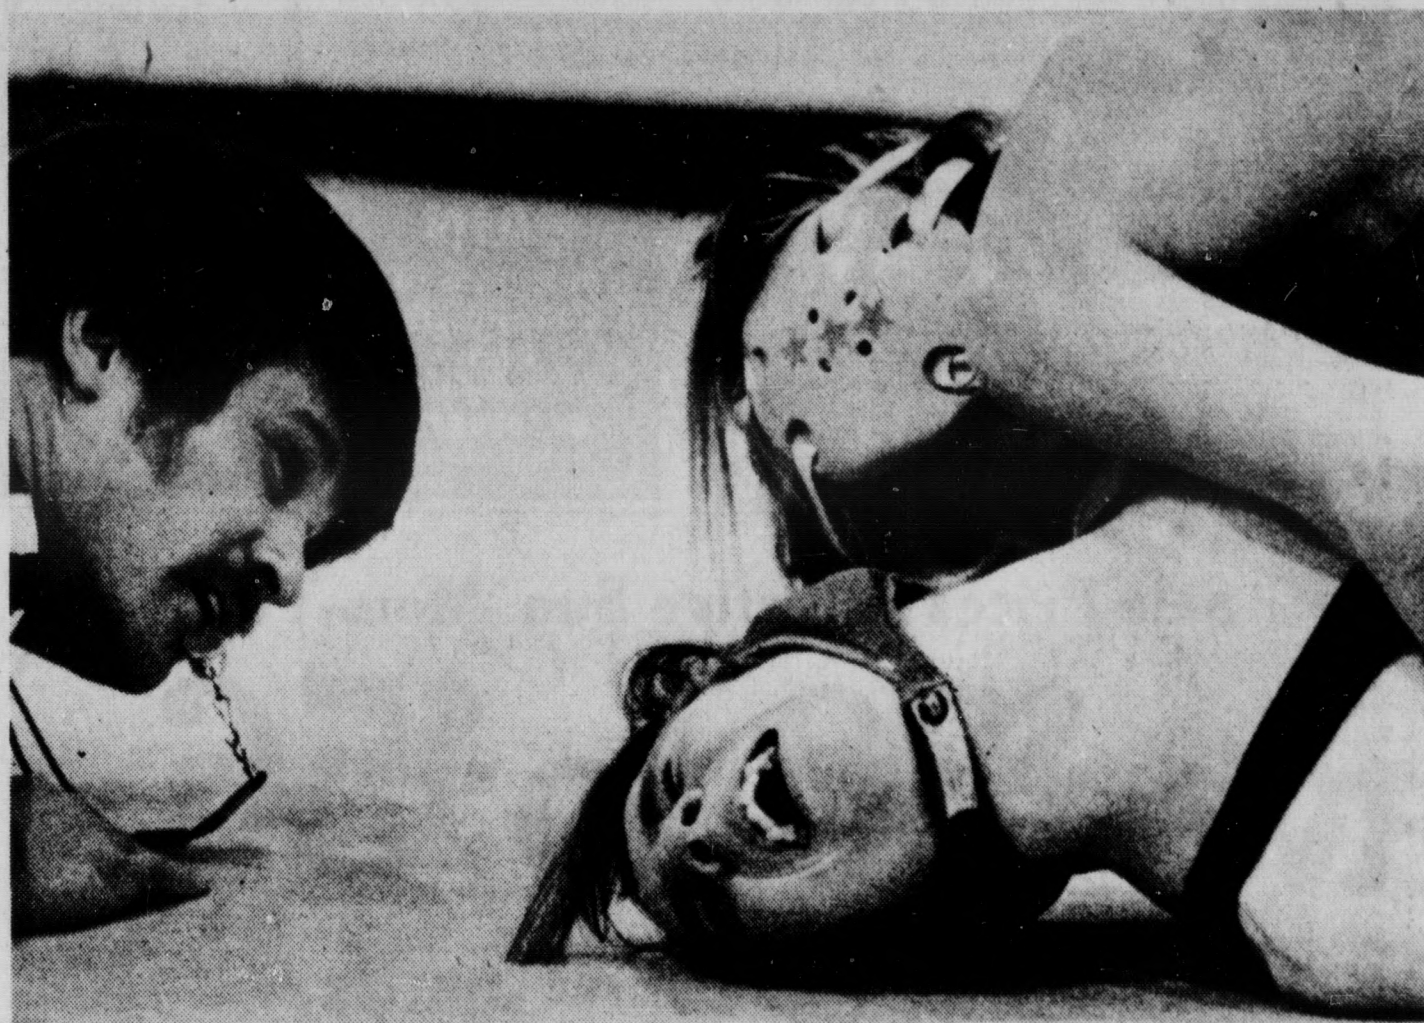

It was thrust and parry for seven matches, Granada leading only 13-9 after the 140's.

Then Granada ran off three straight victories, 9-0 by Jim Laflin, 6-5 for Kelly Conrad, and all climaxed by Lopez' pin.

Jaeger's narrow defeat insured the triumph, then Cowboy Gary Dimon forfeited at 193. He was protecting an injured shoulder.

Mark McGowan, questionable because of wrist problems, scored a second round pin to footnote the evening.

"I asked him if he wanted to wrestle, and he said he did," Page explained. "I thought it was time he got back to it." McGowan skipped his heavyweight match last Wednesday, as Granada was defeating Dublin.

UPSET WINNER BRETT NADEAU TRIES TO PIN LIVERMORE'S JACK BAIRD
Nadeau's win helped the Matadors to a 37-12 win over the Cowboys Friday. Referee (far left) appears to be giving Baird a dental check-up.

Granada tops 'Pokes

By DAVE WEBER

Granada High survived the disqualification of three starters and 20 second-half points by Ed St. Clair to defeat hometown EBAL rival Livermore, 69-65, Friday night before an overflow crowd of perhaps 1800 in the Matador's gym.

Lee Brennan, Mike Fracisco and Joey Wujek all fouled out in the final nine minutes of the contest and it seemed that Livermore, trailing 39-29 by halftime, would seize the opportunity to take the lead for the first time since late in the first quarter.

But, although the Cowboys drew to within one or two points five times in the fourth quarter, Granada always was able to come up with a key basket and gain a little breathing room.

St. Clair was held to just two baskets and four free throws in the first half by the Mats muscle forward Rich Gutierrez, but exploded for seven field goals and six charity tosses in the last two periods to pace Livermore's abortive comeback try.

Granada put together a 5-2 lead at the outset of the contest, only to have the 'Pokes score the next seven in a row to take a 9-5 advantage. However, it was a game of streaks, and the Mats came right back with their own 11-2 burst led by Lee Brennan who scored five of the points and blocked a Livermore shot during the binge.

Granada continued to run away from the Cowboys at the beginning of the second quarter, outscoring them 10-2 over the first 2:15. Scott Campbell tossed in four points in that stretch.

But once again, the Pokes, with St. Clair and Wood each hitting for four points, roared back with a 12-3 rally to pull to within four, 29-25.

Mike Fracisco, however, was in the midst scoring six straight Mat points, on two bank shots and a pair of free throws, to spark a 10-2 Matador spurt giving Granada a 12-point lead.

Rich Gross heaved in a 24-footer for Livermore to finalize the halftime score.

After intermission, Livermore got a bit tougher, outscoring the hosts by three in each of the third and fourth quarters. However, turnovers, which plagued the Cowboys throughout the ballgame, continued to play a major role and the 'Pokes never regained the lead.

Livermore committed 17 turnovers during the contest and was burned six times while the Matadors coughed the ball up 10 times for three Cowboy scores.

The game was still up for grabs in the closing minutes.

With 2:33 to play, St. Clair followed up a jumper by Ted Wood with a free throw to make it 65-61.

However, Vance Rushing just up from the Granada JV, drove in for a bank shot from the right of the lane and, after a St. Clair hoop, hit a foul shot to keep the Mats in the lead 66-63.

But St. Clair then picked up a lay-in and the Cowboys were within one with just over a minute remaining. It was all for naught, though, as the Cowboys never scored again.

Scott Campbell's baseline drive from the left and a free throw by Gutierrez iced the Granada win.

Oddly, the visitors outrebounded the Mats, 38-34, as St. Clair grabbed the game's highest total of 20. Teammate Curt Groth snatched seven leaving the other five players the Cowboys employed with only 11.

Granada was only slightly more balanced on the boards as Dave Campbell collected 13 while Brennan recorded seven.

Scott Campbell gave the Mat brother act another leader as he paced the Granada scoring with 21 points. Next of kin Dave, 11, and Brennan, 10, were the other Mats in double figures.

'Stangs escape with win

By STEVE MONA

Just when it looked like they were on the way up, they were shot down.

The Amador Valley High wrestling team that is.

The Dons, after suffering a tough 28-24 loss to Livermore last Friday won three straight dual meets en route to the Dublin Invitational Wrestling tournament.

Then Monte Vista came to Pleasanton Friday night.

And when the Mustangs left, they took with them a 35-17 victory.

Only Rob Mayhue's pin over the Mustangs' Kurt Kanelis in the heavyweight bracket prevented a humiliating loss.

The Dons were braced to lose two matches on the night, while the rest were expected to be close.

As expected, Monte Vista's fine 147 pound Bart Wooten won, a second round pin over the Don's Eugene Maxwell.

Super-tough Casey Merrill stuck Amador's Mike Krikorian with 1:49 expired in the second round of their 191 pound bout.

But did the unexpected take place.

97 pound Ray Pepi pinned the Don's Steve Potts with only six seconds remaining in their match.

The two competitors were ted one all when Pepi turned Potts over.

The Dons managed to knot the team score at 9-9 when Art Brannan out pointed Rob Overstreet 9-4.

Brannan's win was one of the few pleasant surprises for Ron Blanton's crew, as they managed to win just four matches.

Carlos Brown at 105 pounds decisioned Neil Halliday 4-0 marking Amador's third individual win.

Senior Rich Tiago recorded the only other win of the evening, a 8-4 whipping of the Mustang's Tom McDaniel.

The 122 pound Tiago picked up five points in the last two rounds to record the victory.

In the night's feature match, 114 pounders Dave Potts and Todd Rambo locked horns.

The Monte Vista senior, Rambo, came out on top 6-1.

Baird wins at Las Lomas

By STEVE MONA

Jack Baird of Livermore High won an individual championship and Livermore and Dublin High appeared headed toward fourth or higher finishes in the Second Annual Las Lomas High School Invitation Wrestling Tournament last night in Walnut Creek.

Final results were not available at press time.

Baird, the 97 pound Poke senior defeated El Cerrito's Norman Woodrow 3-2 for the individual crown.

The Cowboy star improved his season record to 16-4 with the hard fought win.

At press time Dublin High was in third place with 82 points. Livermore was next in line with 77 points.

Mike Nagle and Doug Pope made the finals for Livermore while Kevin Bukowatz, Kevin Dugan and Bob Klein made the championship grade for the surprising Gaels.

Livermore's Jeff Johnson reaced the 140 pound third place match by virtue of a bye, win and loss.

Johnson opened up the day with a bye, then whitewashed Antioch's Don Anderson 7-0 then proceeded to drop a 12-4 decision to Steve Drybread of Quincy.

Ken Fleming of Dublin went for fifth place as he pinned Ken Teutschel of Acalanes with 1:21 expired in the first round, was pinned by Drybread with :19 wasted in the third round and defeated Anderson 5-0.

The Gaels Kevin Bukowatz recorded two pins and a whopping decision to reach the 147 pound finals.

Bukowatz pinned Scott Lindsey of Grant with 1:16 gone in the first period, stuck Castlemont's Howard Swaggard with 1:29 expired in the initial round, and dominated Antioch's Jeff Watson 12-4.

Roger Capri of Livermore battled for third place in the 147 class.

Capri defeated El Cerrito's Steve Bailey, 5-2, pinned Hayward's Greg Abbott with 1:50 gone in the second round before losing to Ross Webber of Del Valle 9-0.

In 156 pound action the Gaels Bob Newton was fighting for the consolation crown.

Newton lost to Scott Osterhof of El Cerrito, then had a second round bye before sticking Hayward's Mike Alarcon with 1:30 expired in the second stanza.

Dugan humiliated Rick Carlson of El Cerrito 17-0, pinned Ken Teutschel of Acalanes 1-21 through the first period and upended Dave Corker of Quincy 6-3.

Livermore's Doug Pope also reached the finals in the 177 pound bracket.

Pope defeated Henry Martinez of Del Valle 7-1, pinned Bart Hussey of Canyon with :56 remaining in the first period, and whitewashed Mark Malkovich of Pittsburg 9-0.

Another Dublin High wrestler, Bob Klein reached the finals, this time in the 191 pound class.

Warriors to seek revenge vs. Sacto

Hopefully back in tact, the Tri Valley Warriors return to the Alameda County Fairgrounds this evening for a Western Basketball Association contest with Sacramento.

Tipoff is 7 p.m.

The Warriors hold just a half-game lead over Stockton in the battle for first place, and look to snap a two-game losing streak tonight.

They will have all-pro forward Willie Wise back for the second consecutive game, following a bout with the flu. Tri-Valley played three games without the 6-6 Wise, and lost two of them.

The Warriors will also have Paul Loveday, working his way back into shape to play the center position.

Tri-Valley lost a two-point decision to Sacramento Wednesday in the state capital.

The change of location could mean a big difference in the outcome, feels Warrior coach John Phillips.

Phillips fumed at the officiating in Wednesday's ball game. The Warriors were awarded 23 free throws, Sacramento, more than 50. Sacramento scored 33 points from the foul line. Tri-Valley, 17.

"We get that one same official every time we go up there," Phillips steamed.

NCS okays grid playoffs

By DAVE WEBER

The North Coast Section approved high school football playoffs yesterday by the narrow margin of 12-11 at its meeting in San Rafael yesterday.

However, the Board of Managers failed to approve a structure for the playoffs, putting that off until its May 3 meeting.

According to Commissioner Paul Gaddini the delay is to give the Managers time for further input on format ideas. Previous suggestions included a three game set-up leading to one champion and a two-gamer leading to co-champions.

"At any rate, this is the closest we've been to having playoffs in our section since the state playoffs were given up in 1926," related Gaddini after the Managers exhausting day-long session.

In addition to the controversial playoff decision, the Board was expected to be asked to waive a rule forbidding athletes to compete on outside teams, so that San Ramon cross-country star Roy Kissin could both run Spring track and accept an AAU invitation to an international cross-country meet in Morocco.

However, no such presentation was made and Gaddini assumed that Kissin was taking his case directly to the CIF which meets next Friday and Saturday in San Francisco.

A good portion of the Board's work yesterday pertained to girls' sports as the North Coast Section approved tennis, volleyball, swimming, cross-country, basketball, softball, badminton and gymnastics as official female sports.

A coaches advisory committee was formed for each sport to act as a liaison between the individual leagues and the Section as a whole.

One of two resolutions concerning realignment of leagues directly related to girls' sports but not the EBAL.

The Board resolved that girls' sports should be conducted in the same leagues as boys' sports, since both are now under exactly the same sort of structure as far as the Section is concerned. However, the EBAL is one of just three NCS leagues already complying with the new rule.

The other realignment vote, possibly aimed at the now bloated Foothill Athletic League (10 teams), was that no league should consist of more than eight schools.

In other business the Section voted to establish a joint board of both the Board of Managers and the Girl's Advisory Committee which would look into standardizing the seasons of the various sports.

For example, the EBAL is still in the midst of soccer while San Francisco schools and the FAL are long finished with soccer, in those league's a fall sport.

The joint board would attempt to decide which season is best for the sport in question. According to Baddini, the move was made to get "maximum use of facilities".

The Section also decided it will have no part of the proposed Northern California Basketball Playoffs, which would have taken over from Oakland's prestigious Tournament of Champions. But, the North Coast will still go ahead with its own cage playoffs as planned.

In its final action of the wearying day, the Board recommended that the CIF be requested to waive a new National Wrestling Federation rule, prohibiting a student from competing in more than four matches in a day, for league, regional and sectional competition.

"We have a letter on file from a doctor saying that it does the student no harm," said Baddini, "and we have never had any problems."

Gaddini added that the rule will mess up the North Coast tradition of cross-bracketing important tournaments.

"We are allowed three entrants in the state meet and we like to include a consolation bracket so that the draw is not too important a factor in the big meets," Gaddini explained.

Rec squeezes TV booters

By MIKE ZAMPA

A recreation department directive is squeezing Tri-Valley Soccer Club out of Pleasanton, team publicist Jack O'Connor says.

By next year, he warns, the team may have to evacuate its home at Pleasanton's Aquatic Park.

In fact, Tri-Valley is already searching out new territory, with Livermore a first choice.

The problem is a city directive which affects Tri-Valley next fall.

The two-month old policy specifies that teams using city facilities must be stocked with at least 75 per cent Pleasanton players.

Three play for Tri-Valley currently.

There's no way, O'Connor says, that Tri-Valley can bring its team up to code.

"I don't think that even Pleasanton United (a new lower division team founded this year) can get 75 per cent Pleasanton players, and they go out and recruit old high school buddies," O'Connor said.

The home-body policy was drafted to ease the crunch of sports teams on Pleasanton facilities, says Bob Caparuso of the recreation department.

"The facilities are being chewed up," he said. "They're used constantly, 12 months a year."

O'Connor says Tri-Valley is searching a way to "get around" the 75 per cent rule. Neither he, nor Caparuso, are sure how that can be accomplished.

Tri-Valley is a mixture of American and foreign-born players with homes scattered through the Bay Area.

The team won a championship in the East Bay Soccer League's first division last year, and sent one player, Johnny Moore, to the San Jose Earthquakes.

Though it boasts "Valley-wide" draw, almost all of its home contests are played at the Aquatic Center in Pleasanton.

Meet will decide if valley effluent to remain

OAKLAND — Effluent produced in the valley will remain in the valley if a basin-wide water quality control plan is adopted as proposed.

The San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Plan, with the weight of federal law supporting its provisions, will be aired in public hearings scheduled Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

The plan, which contains numerous changes in discharge requirements that regional water board officials say will help protect the San Francisco Bay and tributaries from pollution, includes provisions for cessation of discharging through Alameda Creek.

The creek currently provides for disposal of Livermore and Valley Community Services District effluent.

The Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency has already begun studies on disposal alternatives, the plan notes.

A series of more stringent discharge regulations included in the plan will force municipal plants throughout the bay region to dechlorinate effluent, severely limit toxicity levels in effluent and lower levels of salinity in discharges.

Industry as well as municipal waste water agencies are expected to protest some of the new regulations.

Representatives from the City of Livermore and Valley Community Services District are expected to be among the more vehement protesters of the new requirements.

Comments will be taken Jan. 31 beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Edgewater Hyatt House near Oakland International Airport and Feb. 1 beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn in Emeryville.

An abstract of the plan is available for review at the Alameda County Business and Government Library, 224 W. Winton, Hayward.

Auto repair manual tells how to do it

Readers say that no automobile repair job is tough when the at-home mechanic uses Motor Publication's Auto Repair Manual.

More and more people — women included — have decided to keep the old car around for another season or so, and there is a decided move on the part of many to do some of the small repair jobs themselves.

Publishers of the Auto Repair Manual aren't suggesting that just anyone can pick up the manual and completely overhaul a high-performance engine or automatic transmission — but for the skilled the how-to-do-it material is available in the book's 1328 pages.

Carburetors, ignition systems, alternators, starters, brakes, instruments, tune-up, fuel pumps, and the like are covered for nearly 3,000 car models from 1969 through 1975.

And there is a complete section on trouble shooting which will let the motorist know just what his mechanical problems are.

Available for $12.95, Motor's 1975 Auto Repair Manual is a must buy for any do-it-yourselfer's shelf. The manual can be ordered directly from: MOTOR, 1790 Broadway, New York, New York 10019 Attn: Mr. Ed Fein, general manager.

New sales associates

Shown here are Michael Hilde and Larry Plisskin with Leanne Mulich, broker, going over the Gallery membership roster which includes 1,600 Gallery installations located throughout the United States, Canada and the Caribbean Islands. Plans for the future include opening of new offices in their other franchise areas of Livermore, Pleasanton and San Ramon.

Wastewater treatment standards due review

OAKLAND — Waste water treatment requirements designed to protect drinking water supplies, fish and clean up polluted San Francisco Bays will be aired later this month in public sessions where local officials are expected to protest a number of new and stringent discharge requirements.

The Regional Water Quality Control Board Water Quality Control Plan, the first of its kind in a series that will be developed throughout the state, is an effort to control the future of California waters.

The plan was drawn in response to the Porter-Cologne Act calling for state water control plans as well as a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency fund allocation requirement for construction of improved waste water treatment plants.

In describing the plan's objectives, the report says, "In the San Francisco Bay, shellfish harvesting has all but been eliminated within the bay and recreational uses along the bayshore of the San Francisco peninsula are not permitted during portions of the year due to bacteriological contamination from untreated wet weather discharges."

The objective of the plan — to clean up the waters — is likely to go unchallenged through the Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 hearings. But the means are likely to be questioned, especially by dischargers to whom the new requirements mean expenditures to improve waste water treatment plants.

One provision, for example, requires dischargers to de-chlorinate effluent. Some dischargers say the installment of proper equipment could cost up to $50,000.

Still another will forbid dischargers in the valley from using the Alameda Creek for effluent disposal. The specific requirement limits the amount of total dissolved salts to be maintained in the surface waters of the creek.

Local officials say that means even the water valley residents drink will not be considered of high enough quality to discharge down the creek.

Regional board officials say that's exactly what it means.

The plan also sets forth tests for determining the quality of effluent. A toxicity test for discharges made into deep sea water, for example, will use the hearty stickleback fish as a guinea pig, with a percentage of the species' survival indicating the cleanliness of the waste water.

Local officials have been aware of the coming prohibition against discharging through the creek, a move that will force valley sewer plants find another way to dispose of waste water.

A Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency has already been exploring alternatives to the traditional disposal methods.

School building support

"Get out that vote!" plot Granada High students Ed Goldberg and John Struthers, aided (right) by Charlie Houlding of Livermore High. The students, along with Kevin Smith of GHS and Loretta Mullany of LHS, are serving on the School Building Program

Election Committee, hoping to pass a $10 million measure which would improve local schools, put a new school in Sunset East on Livermore's south side, and cost the owner of a $40,000 house about $68 a year in additional taxes. (Times Photo)

Save me a rose!

When Citizens Savings and Loan Association marked its 90th birthday doing business in California, it spread cake from here to there — the "here" being the local branch for that firm, where Jake Foster, right, invited Pleasanton dignitaries to do the serving. Jo Betty Allen, outgoing president of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce, and Mayor Floyd Mori were among those responding to that invitation. (Times Photo)

CC criminal justice

Funding asked for projects

Federal funding for 12 criminal justice projects, costing more than $1 million, is being requested by the Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors.

The board today approved the applications for funding of five new county-sponsored programs and continuation of seven current projects in fiscal year 1975-76. The applications will be forwarded to the state's office of Criminal Justice Planning for final approval.

Federal crime control funds would supply nearly two-thirds of the money, $640,389. Contra Costa County would contribute $251,260, cities in the county $104,069 and the state of California $35,577.

The 12 projects are included in the 1975 Criminal Justice

Plan approved by the Criminal Justice Agency planning board.

The five new programs proposed would receive 90 percent federal funding:

- Assistance to the volunteer organization Friends Outside, which works in prisoner rehabilitation and aids families of prisoners, $33,334.

- Consumer education and expansion of consumer protection laws by the District Attorney's office, assisted by five law students, $33,334.

- Community treatment Program for Persons arrested in the San Pablo area, $116,458.

- Study for the Public Defender's office of possible plan to use mix of public and private defense attorneys, $60,478.

- Expansion and update of video training equipment for the county jail and rehabilitation center and the Clayton police department, $8,730.

The seven continuing programs would be:

- The countywide "strike force" that is uncovering drug sources, $284,912.

- Drug and narcotics analysis and intelligence information program, technical support for the strike force, $24,470.

- Control of major offenders in burglary and other related offenses, $80,595.

- Probation and counseling assistance for minors and their families in the Pittsburg-Antioch area, $92,556.

- Adult drug abuse and Prevention treatment program, $218,939.

- Fingerprint retrieval system project, $32,949.

- Tri-agency training program, to fund technical training courses for members of Pittsburg and Richmond police departments and the Contra Costa County Sheriff's office, $44,540.

Illegally-placed campaign signs may be retrieved — for a $10 fee

Assembly candidates who posted campaign signs illegally in the county road right-of-way will be able to retrieve them for a fee when the signs are confiscated by county public works personnel, according to county spokesmen.

The Contra Costa County board of Supervisors has approved an ordinance allowing the public works department to recover the costs of collecting the unlawful advertising signs which are currently blossoming in the unincorporated areas.

Public Works Director Victor Sauer said his department plans to charge $10 a sign to recoup its sign collection costs, including the overtime pay which the county has been forced to authorize. According to Sauer, most of the campaign signs are posted over the weekend.

"For sale" signs are also a source of county concern, Sauer said, because Homeowners associations are complaining to the county about the "forest" of signs which crop up over the weekend but are usually gone when the county crews come around on Monday to investigate.

Sauer said the county will hold all signs removed by the public works crews for 10 days. The signs will be stored in the public works maintenance yard in Martinez.

The ordinance, Sauer noted, does not apply to legal notices which are authorized to be posted by governmental agencies.

NOTICE OF HEARINGS ON P.U.C. APPLICATION NO. 55344 FOR REVISED RATES, CHARGES AND RATE STRUCTURES FOR INTRASTATE VOICE GRADE PRIVATE LINE TELEPHONE SERVICE

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company on November 26, 1974, filed with the Public Utilities Commission of the State of California, Application No. 55344, for authority to modify existing rates and tariffs for private line services and channels. Pacific seeks to adjust private line service and channel rate treatment for various exchanges in California.

Hearings on Application No. 55344 have been scheduled to commence before Examiner Donald Mooney on February 3, 1975, at the State Building, Civic Center, San Francisco, California.

Pacific's application is in response to a proposal of Southern Pacific Communications Company to provide intrastate private line services now under consideration in consolidated Case Nos. 9728 and 9731 and Application No. 55284 which are presently pending before the California Public Utilities Commission. Pacific plans to withdraw its Application No. 55344 if Southern Pacific is denied a certificate of public convenience and necessity to provide its proposed private line services.

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT OF THE CITY OF PLEASANTON COUNTY OF ALAMEDA STATE OF CALIFORNIA NOTICE OF DECISION

DATE January 19, 1975 The Director of Housing and Community Development of the city of Pleasanton has made the determination that RZ-74-12 has been determined to require an environmental impact report.

The property in question is located within the area bounded by Santa Rita Road, West Las Positas Boulevard, the Southern Pacific Railroad right-of-way and the Tassajara Canal and contains approximately 54.8 acres.

It is the opinion of the Director of Housing and Community Development that the requested action (rezoning the property from IP (Industrial Park) and C-S (Commercial Service) Districts to P (Public and Institutional) and RM-2500 (Multiple Residential) and O (Office) Districts, for the purpose of constructing a general hospital, related offices and multiple residential, might, to a significant degree, create the effects enumerated in City Council Resolution 74-24 (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures) which indicate that the environment could be harmed.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Housing and Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, CA 94566, Telephone 846-3202.

Unless any written appeals on this case are received by this department within ten (10) days of the above date, this decision will become effective.

Tools taken from residences

LIVERMORE — Fifteen hundred dollars in tools were stolen Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning from the 1747 Pine Ave. garage of Henry J. Overby, police report.

The thief removed a toolbox, tools, and a jacket from Overby's truck, parked in the garage, then stole a table and a chain saw from the garage area.

The "Shop Smith" table saw is valued at $900, the "McCulough" chain saw at $150, and the tool box, marked "Saturn Airway," at $325. Some of the tools are stamped "H-J-O."

Meanwhile, William A. St. Michel, 25, 2376 Bluebell Dr., Livermore, reported the theft of tools from the tool box of his Chevrolet truck Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

St. Michel discovered the theft Wednesday morning when he reported for work.

The tool box, mounted on the exterior of the truck, was secured by a lock which was either broken or cut off.

The tools are valued at $485. On the same night burglars broke into the 1969 Chevrolet El Camino of Gary J. McGregor, 25, 518 Enos Way, Livermore, stealing a tape deck, tools, and some clothing.

The thief left two pool "cue" balls in the car before relocking it.

Cities report taxable sales

Livermore reported $18.7 million and Pleasanton $10.9 million in taxable sales for the third quarter of 1974, according to a statement released by the State Board of Equalization.

Livermore's total included $16.5 million in taxable retail sales, from 244 local stores.

Pleasanton in that quarter recorded 124 retail outlets with $6.6 million in sales. (The disparity in Pleasanton's total sales activity versus retail sales probably reflects the sales attributed to Pleasanton from the Kaiser Sand and Gravel plant and from Scholastic Magazines, both within the city limits.)

Taxable sales throughout the state were up 14.9 percent in the third quarter of 1974 over a similar period for 1973. It was the strongest growth difference reported since the spring of 1973, the state agency indicated.

Nursing aid graduates

Recent nursing aid graduates of Pleasanton Convalescent, Diane Jager, Roberta Ross, Lou Kitchens, Fern Millspough and Pat Brown, practice what they have learned with each other. The second course in nursing assistants course sponsored by the Amador Livermore Regional Occupational Program (ROP), covering all basic skills necessary for nursing aids in any type of hospital, will begin on Jan. 27, at the Pleasanton Convalescent Hospital. Any man or woman over 18 is eligible to apply for the five month course. (Times Photo)

Don Quarberg, left, and Mark Voight are two new members of the local office of the United States Soil Conservation Service, an agency of the Department of Agriculture. Both live in Livermore and both have done graduate work in branches of biology. Here they peruse one of the many maps and graphs they constantly work with. (Times Photo)

New AVTA officers

Mary Eveleth, second from right, will again lead the Amador Valley Teachers Assn. Also serving during the coming year will be Kent Rees, left, vice president; Barbara Weber, treasurer, and Fay Alsop, recording secretary. Terry Hanifen was named corresponding secretary. Association represents teachers in Pleasanton Elementary School District. (Times Photo)
